New Storm Coming.

MOBILE, ALA., September 30.—Considerable disquietude was occasioned here to-night when the announcement was made by the Weather Bureau that a second storm was present in the Yucatan Channel. The barometer here to-night is 29.76 and still falling.

WASHINGTON, September 30.—The Weather Bureau to-night announced that another tropical disturbance is reported as approaching the Yucatan Channel from the first, but that there was no information available as to the intensity of the storm. Its approach was reported to the bureau by the Cuban College of Reports at Havana, the same source from which the warning of the recent gulf hurricane first emanated. While the bureau officials decline to hazard a prediction as to how severe is the second storm, it is pointed out that the remnants of the storm of last week now being crowded southward in the middle gulf coast may serve as a check upon the second storm.

MOBILE, ALA., via MERIDIAN, MISS., September 30.—The number of casualties in the great storm of last Wednesday is slowly increasing as messages are received from places which have heretofore been inaccessible. The total last night of the known dead was seventy-five. This statement was brought up to a certainty of seventy-five and a possibility of 100 by the reports which reached Mobile during the night, and early today four bodies, not before counted, have been found at Cedar, and it is estimated that twenty-three lives have been lost from the oyster fleet around Cedar Point. This last estimate is not known to be accurate, and is probably exaggerated as it includes among the dead every man aboard a fishing boat who has not been heard of since the storm. It is known that some of the boats on which these men were have been driven ashore, and it is entirely possible that some of the crews managed to reach the shore.

It does not seem likely at present that the death-roll will amount in this vicinity to more than 100.

Mobile itself is rapidly emerging from the confusion of the storm. Large gangs of men were kept working all day Sunday in clearing the streets of the debris of the storm. The work has commenced to run for the first time since Wednesday. The dock is rapidly being repaired, and business will be normal as soon as the railroad is able to run trains. As yet the Louisville and Nashville is still disabled, and is the only railroad which is unable to maintain a schedule, and the time when that line will be open for regular traffic is conjectured. It will certainly be the best part of a fortnight before the regular trains between Mobile and New Orleans, the Southern and the Mobile and Ohio are running trains as before the storm.

Along the Coast.

The situation along the coast to the west of this city is now fairly well settled. At Atlix, Yucatan, one church, the Old Fellows Hall and several buildings were blown down. At Pasacagoula, nearly a residence is left standing, the other front of that hotel is completely torn up, and the light-house there has been destroyed. Shipping at this place has been badly damaged. The revenue cutter Winona, for which much fear was expressed, is now known to be safe. The crew of the cutter rescued the captain of a big which came near the house at the beginning of the storm, tried him to leave, but he refused to abandon his post, and in a short time was drowned. The entire end of the building at the light-house was situated in a way to have been carried away by the waves.

At Biloxi the damage has been of a minor character to buildings. Every bath-house in the place has gone, and the beautiful driveway along the coast at this point has been destroyed. Boats which have found refuge from all the storm that blew by fleeing into the back bay at Biloxi are again in such jeopardy on Wednesday as the waves ran high and many of the boats that sought refuge there were sunk, and all of them were badly damaged.

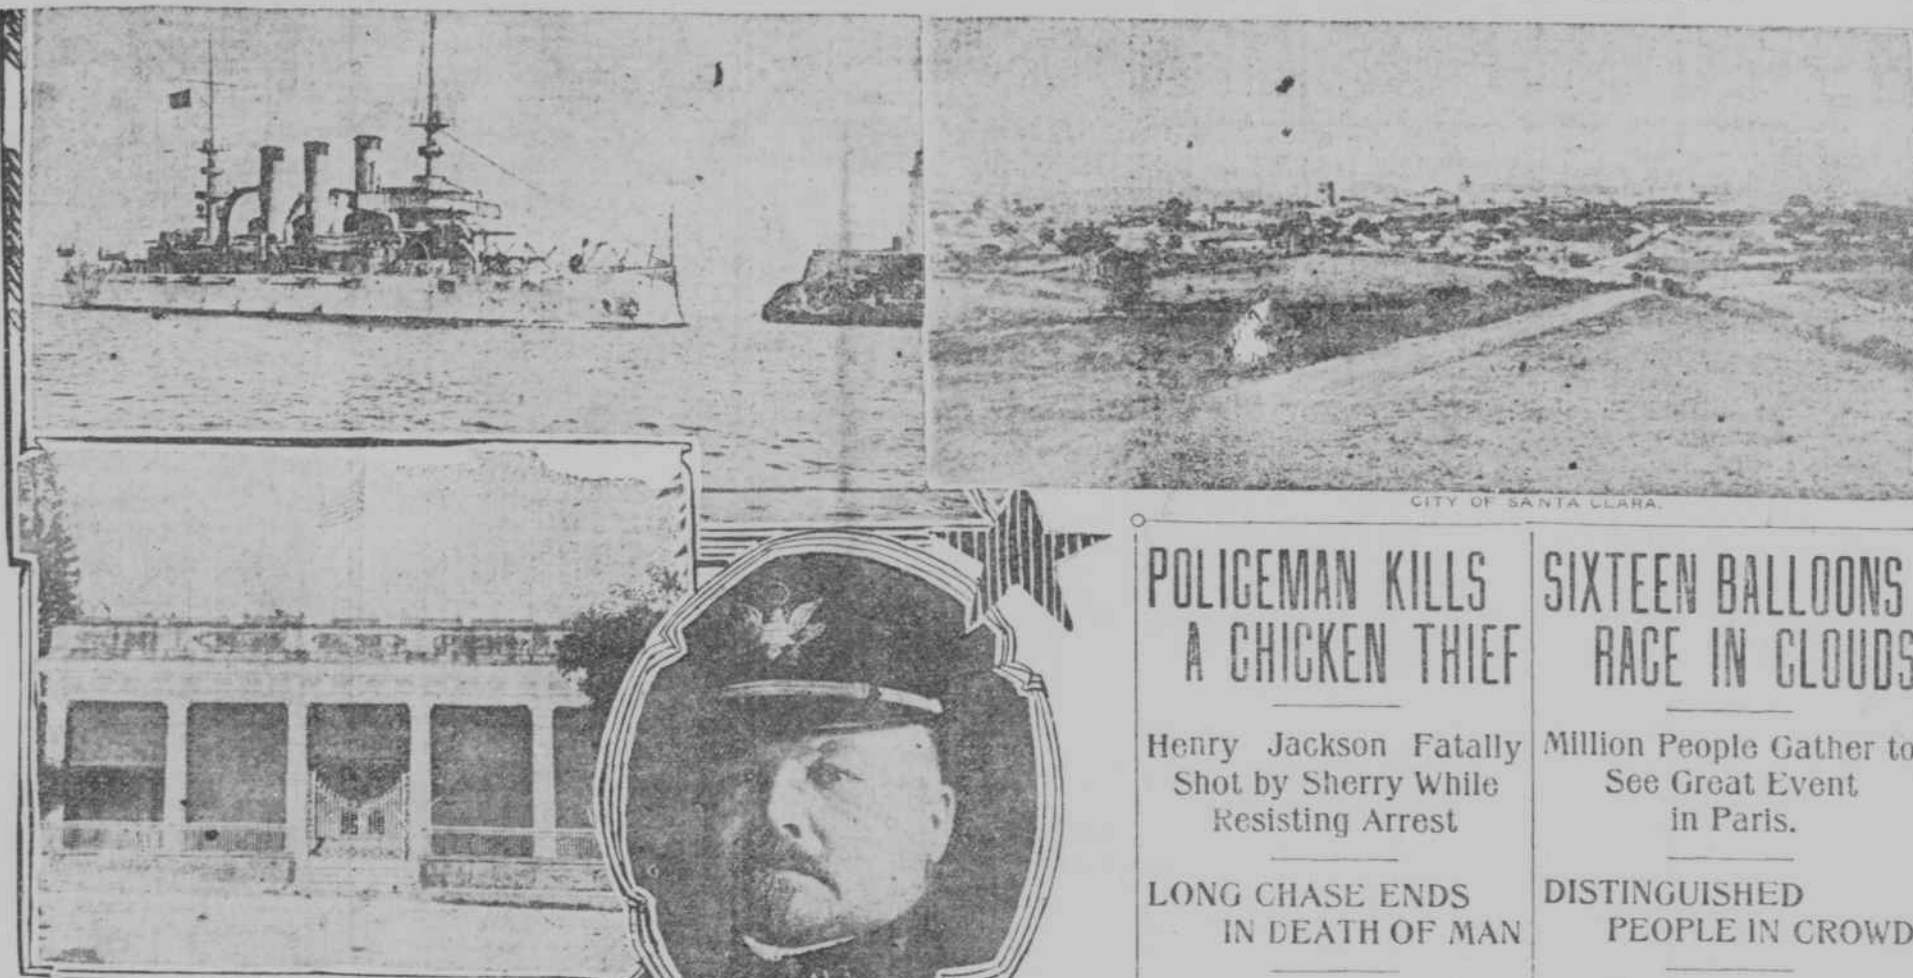

At Pass Christian, no lives were lost, and the damage was slight.

The wrecking of a few houses comprised the damage at Gulfport, and no lives were lost there. Vessels at Ship Island at the time of the storm were beached, and two will be total wrecks.

Vessels Ashore.
Several vessels, the names of which are unknown, are ashore off Horn Island and the small islands marking the passage between Dauphin Island and the mainland have been destroyed. The beacon lights on this part of the coast

FIGURING ON THE SITUATION

Democratic Campaign Handbook Will Be Issued Early
This Week.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.]
WASHINGTON, D. C., September 30.—The Democratic campaign handbook will be issued on Wednesday, or possibly on Tuesday afternoon. The fact that the book makes its appearance today after the Republican campaign book has given the editors time in which to make direct reply to some of the statements contained in the former. The book is the work of Representative John Wesley Gaines and Representative John J. Bowers, and those who have examined the copy say it is one of the ablest presentations of facts from the Democratic standpoint that the party has issued in some years.

There is not entire unanimity of opinion among Democrats regarding the nomination of Mr. Hearst this week to the governorship of New York. It is not very hard to find Democrats who say outright that they should be glad to see the Democratic nominee defeated. They do not regard Mr. Hearst as being a Democrat, and do not feel that they should support him in thought or action. They believe that the party would be immensely benefited by rebuking him and his followers and purging itself of the Independence League, and various tins and slogans for which Mr. Hearst stands.

Have Taken to Woods.
There is a large class which professes to have taken to the woods. They feel that they cannot swallow Hearst, and they cannot find it in their hearts to advocate the election of Hughes, who was nominated under the wing of the Big Stick and at the dictation of President Roosevelt.

There is a class composed of those who pride themselves upon their party regularity, who accept Mr. Hearst, though they would not have chosen him as the nominee. The class of Hearst men as an original proposition is very small. The strength of Mr. Hughes lies in the work which he did as chief investigator in the investigation of the big insurance companies which revealed such frauds that the country was staggered, and reputable business men still stand aghast at the rottenness brought to light. But the fact that Mr. Hughes, although he has received many encomiums for having unearthed so much graft and crookedness, received a fee of $25,000 for this work, detracts somewhat from the value of the service when used as a reason for heaping political honors upon him. It is not claimed that he would not have taken the side of the insurance companies had they gone him first.

Mr. Hughes is a corporation lawyer. He has had very little practice except corporation practice. Mr. Thomas F. Ryan, and Mr. August Belmont, although "Democrats," will support Mr. Hughes. It is the pronounced belief of a very large portion of the voters of New York that Mr. Ryan and Mr. Belmont, Democrats, and Mr. Harriman, Republican, have a complete understanding, and, being in control of the organizations of the two parties, support and elect those candidates likely to hear down most lightly upon the large corporations in which the three gentlemen named are interested.

Betting on Result.
Whether this be true makes not the slightest difference. Thousands of people believe it to be true, and thus far they have been unshaken in their belief. The Hearst papers have been reporting the

PORT HURON, MICH., September 30.—An unknown steamer foundered with its entire crew in Lake Huron off Sandusky at 2 o'clock this morning during the northern gale.

The tragedy was witnessed by the crew of the passenger steamer City of Mackinac, which arrived at Harbor Beach today. The Mackinac was some distance away when the unknown steamer foundered, and cruised about in the vicinity for some time in the hope of rescuing some of the crew, but in the darkness and storm no trace of them could be found, nor any clue to the identity of the vessel.

MURDERED WOMAN WITH HEAVY AX

Killing Was Witnessed Through Window of Murderer's Sleeping Apartments.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
BRISTOL, TENN., September 30.—By the jury verdict the atrocious murder of Mrs. Letitia Glover, whose head was almost severed from her body by a blow from an ax, is fixed upon Sylvester Luttrell, the man in whose sleeping apartment the woman met her death. The case was tried in the Circuit Court of this county at Knoxville. It was nearly 12 o'clock last night when the jury reached its verdict, fixing Luttrell's punishment at twelve years in the penitentiary. Jamie Ramsey, the woman who was indicted as Luttrell's accomplice, was acquitted.

One witness, a negro man, testified that he witnessed the tragedy through a window in Luttrell's sleeping apartment, and saw Luttrell strike the fatal blow with an ax, following a heated quarrel with the woman. A strong case was made out, but there were a few features that created some doubt in the minds of the jury, and for this reason a compromise verdict was reached.

The murder was committed in Bristol four months ago. The verdict does not give satisfaction here, since the general opinion is that Luttrell was guilty, and that he should have received nothing less than the death penalty. Luttrell stoutly denied his guilt on the stand.

POLICEMAN KILLS A CHICKEN THIEF

LONG CHASE ENDS IN DEATH OF MAN

Negro With Suspicious Bag Refused to Halt When Ordered and After Sensational Pursuit by Officers
Was Killed by Pistol Shot.

Policeman Charles A. Sherry early yesterday morning shot and killed Henry Jackson, colored, while the latter was attempting to escape arrest. It was not, however, until four shots had been fired that the negro fell. He never spoke or moved, and death seems to have been instantaneous.

Policemen Sherry and Duggins were sitting on the steps leading to the grounds of St. John's Church about 5:35 or 5:40 o'clock yesterday morning when the former noticed Jackson coming across Broad Street, diagonally from Twenty-fifth Street. The negro had a large bag on his shoulders, and his actions must have been suspicious. Officer Sherry called him to halt. Instead of obeying the command, the man made a dash for liberty, and both officers started after him in full cry. The fleeing negro was barefooted, and but half-dressed, and he made a good race.

He directed his course into the alley, which runs between Broad and Marshall Streets, behind Engle House No. 1, which faces on Twenty-fifth Street. The officer continued to call to the negro to halt, but the man dropped his bag near the mouth of the alley and increased his speed. Officer Sherry then fired once to scare Jackson, but to no effect, he fired again, but with the intention of hitting the man.

Fatal Scuffle in Dark.
Just behind the engine house is a dirt pile, and over this the running negro sprang, with the officer on top of him. There was a sharp scramble for a few seconds. Sherry jerked out his revolver and belabored the man with it a few times, but the latter managed to jump to his feet, and started off again. Sherry fired twice more, and at the fourth shot the negro fell in a heap, face downward. He never moved or spoke, and his pulse soon ceased its beats.

Jackson had been struck three times. One bullet struck just at the base of the spinal column, but it is believed that it did not enter. Another ball went through the lower part of the back and into the bowels. The third shot struck squarely in the back of the negro's head, and it must have been this bullet that brought him down.

As the first shots were fired, Firemen Powell and Rust, of Engine House No. 1, bearing the noise, rushed out to see what caused the firing. They followed the running men, and when Jackson fell Rust went up to him to feel his heart and see if he was still beating, and he rushed to the telephone to call the ambulance. The negro died, however, before Mr. Rust returned.

Officer Sherry saw that the negro was dead, but did not touch him. He ran back and picked up the bag, which he found to contain nine chickens, five dead and four living. Where they came from, no one knew, but that they rightfully belonged to the negro was a matter over which the police had much doubt.

Coroner Taylor argued on the scene soon after the shooting, and ordered the body to be taken to Johnson's undertaking establishment. Captain Whitlock arrived within thirty-five minutes, and placed Policeman Sherry under arrest. He was taken before Justice Crutchfield, who held him in the sum of $1,000. Sergeant Jetter going the prisoner's security.

Identified by Employer.
The identity of the dead man was in doubt for some time, until the arrival of Mr. Chris Manning, who, as soon as the elch was removed from the dead man's face, at once recognized him as being one of his own employees.

It seems that the negro had for a long time borne a bad reputation, and also that he was an ex-convict. On being examined by Coroner Taylor he was found to have a pallock in his left hip pocket, and in one of his side pockets was found a much-worn accident policy, which warned all men of the uncertainty of life and the great liability to accidents and advised that such an accident policy be taken out.

The coroner's inquest was held in the First Police Station at 4 o'clock. There were but four witnesses summoned: Policeman Duggins, Mr. Rust and Mr. Powell of the Fire Department, and Officer Sherry, who also made a statement. There was no difference of opinion regarding the manner of the shooting, all

DISTINGUISHED PEOPLE IN CROWD

Winds Robbed Occasion of Im-

Shores of Atlantic the Limit of Distance.

PARIS, September 30.—Sixteen balloons, averaging over 200 cubic metres capacity each, and representing seven countries, sailed away from the Tuilleries gardens, in the heart of Paris, this afternoon in the first competition for the Gordon Bennett cup for international aeronauts. The wind was light, hardly more than eight miles an hour and from the east, thus making the shores of the Atlantic the limit of distance, and robbing the occasion of its importance as a test of long distance aerial traveling.

It is calculated that over a million people saw the balloons as they sailed away. The terraces in the gardens had been reserved for invited guests. They were occupied by prominent aeronauts of Europe, as well as many distinguished visitors from various countries, the foreign diplomats here and the French Ministers of War and Marine.

Santos Dumont, one of the two representatives of the Aero Club of America, proved to be the only contestant to inaugurate a novelty.

To keep aloft as long as possible, he had equipped his car with a six horsepower vertical propeller, with the object of lifting and lowering his balloon without discharging any of its precious ballast.

MANY STUDENTS ATTEND SERVICE
Dr. C. S. Gardner Preaches Special
Sermon to the Youth of Both Sexes.

Students of both sexes, of various creeds and denominations, attended yesterday morning the special services in Grace Street Baptist Church. Among them was an Armenian, who received his first training in the Protestant College in Egypt, and who has come all the way to America to study medicine.

Dr. Gardner, pastor of the church, was at his best, and a splendid musical program had been arranged for the occasion. Mr. Haddon S. Watkins sang at the end of the sermon a beautiful and appropriate solo, "Building for Eternity."

Dr. Gardner took as his subject, "The Building of Character." He opened his discourse by saying that there are three institutions which are constructive, and which really build up character and civilization of these three institutions the home is the first and fundamental one, the second is the school, and the third, the church. Every one of these is primarily constructive in its work, and through them a higher type and character of civilization is produced. The foundation of this building is Jesus Christ, and the individual character and social life must be set on Him, if it is to be properly constructed.

The principle or spirit of His life was that of service, and the life fashioned upon His model must be consecrated to the service of others.

Career of the Cuban Republic Told Chronologically.

DECEMBER 10, 1898.—Relinquished by Spain through the signing of the treaty of Paris after having been continuously in possession of that country since the discovery of the island.

NOVEMBER 5, 1900.—Convention meets to decide upon a constitution for the new republic.

FEBRUARY 21, 1901.—Constitution is adopted and the United States Congress passes a law authorizing the President of the United States to make over the island to its people.

JUNE 21, 1901.—Cuba accepts the conditions laid down by the Congress of the United States.

FEBRUARY 24, 1902.—President Tomas Estrada Palma is elected President of Cuba.

MAY 22, 1902.—Control of the island of Cuba is formally transferred to the new government.

DECEMBER 27, 1903.—Relations between Cuba and the United States made closer through the operation of the reciprocal commercial convention.

SEPTEMBER 29, 1904.—Secretary Taft proclaimed himself provisional governor to put down disorders, and asked that American force be landed on island. President ordered 6,000 troops sent at once.

HAVANA, September 30.—The work of disposing peacefully of the revolutionary forces in arms against the Cuban government is already practically under way. Brigadier-General Frederick Funston, chairman of the disarmament commission, had two amicable conferences to-day with Generals Pino Guerra and Del Castillo and arranged a program perfect, by satisfactory to all concerned.

In fact General Funston said this afternoon that the wind-up will be so smooth and rapid that it will take much less time than had been anticipated.

The first landing of any considerable number of Americans took place to-night when 400 marines came ashore from the squadron in the harbor. This force proceeded for Cienfuegos at 9 o'clock, this evening on a special train. It was explained that this movement was not made on account of any actual trouble in Cienfuegos, but for the purpose of exerting a salutary influence on the local situation, which contains some possibility of a conflict by reason of the tense feeling existing between the government volunteers and the insurgents.

The day at the palace passed quietly and rather gloomily. There are as yet no signs of Secretary Taft's actual occupation of that office which was to-day the scene of a number of farewells to ex-President Palma and his family. The members of the diplomatic corps and the foreign consuls called in a body to say goodbye.

They gave expression to many sincere words of friendship and appreciation of the character and kindness of the late head of the republic.

Senator Palma received all his visitors with quiet dignity, and seemed entirely reconciled to going, although he still appeared dejected at the outcome of the revolution.

Towards evening the private reception-room of the palace was thrown open, and scores of personal friends called and remained for some time with Senator Palma, his wife and other members of the family. The ex-President is besieged by requests for interviews by cable and in person. London newspapers are urgent in asking for an interview. To the cablegrams the ex-President has not replied, while to the newspaper correspondents he has sent word that he has nothing further to say.

Today Secretary Taft sent a letter to Senator Palma, saying he desired to see him to the railroad station to-morrow and show him every courtesy due his exalted position. Senator Palma thanked Secretary Taft cordially but said he wished to leave quietly and without public ceremony.

The disarmament commission has decided that the rebels shall not receive pay for their arms, but each man will be given transportation and subsistence until he reaches home. The program of disarmament is simply that one member of the commission, accompanied by one or more representatives of the revolutionists will visit each command. The arms will be deposited with the battalion commander, who will turn them over to the commission. The rebels will take their horses home, the animals which have
